You will have to be patient.

It takes some time merge the patch with ryzom core and test it for Windows, Linux and Mac OS.

We just updated rsync today and I've sent to PPA the source package for all versions from Lucid to Oneiric.

You can follow progress there :

https://launchpad.net/~kervala/+archive/ppa/+builds?build_text=&build_state=all

https://launchpad.net/~kervala/+archive/ryzom/+builds?build_text=&build_state=all

If all is ok, I will send them to Canonical guys to update Ubuntu Software Center :)

I suppose it should be published on next week.

Thanks kervala, I especially choose the official client because i wanted to give a five star note :)

molator: but i'm patient! i am the patience itself ^^

Thanks a lot :)

If you have any problem with Ryzom don't hesitate to post. The biggest frustration is to read comments like "It doesn't work" without any details, so we have no way to help :(

- Category set to Build
- Status changed from New to Resolved
- Assignee set to kerval
- Target version set to Version 0.9.0

Now it's available too for Precise :)
